Manager Thomas M. Russell, of the Washington Theater, closed a contract yesterday for the appearance here on Monday, February 11, of the big musical comedy, "Princes Pat." IN THE SERVICE

Mason County has a John Paul Jones, who enlisted at age of 16 and has had some varied experiences.

Secretary Carl Dadds of the Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of the following communication:
Germantown, Ky., Jan. 21, 1918.
Mr. Carl Dadds,
Dear Sir:

In response to your request of a few days ago through the daily papers of Maysville as to obtaining any names of Mason county boys who are enlisted in service and not reported in your file, I take pleasure in sending to you the name of John Paul Jones, of Germantown, Ky. Paul was 16 years old September 8, 1916, and on February 19, 1917, enlisted in Maysville and was sent to Columbus, Ohio. Remaining in Columbus less than 30 days, from Columbus he was sent to Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas. Soon after arriving there, he with thirteen other boys, was stricken with spinal meningitis. Eight of the fourteen died, Paul being one of the lucky six that lived. Three of the six got entirely well and again Paul was one of the lucky three.

In May he was sent to Hot Springs, Arkansas, to regain his health and strength. He stayed at Hot Springs until October. Then he returned to San Antonio and later in the fall he was sent to Port Arthur, Texas, where he is in training as well as helping guard some government property.

When Paul enlisted his intention was to be an aviator but his long and severe sick spell affected his nerves and he is now enlisted in Company F, 19th Infantry.

(Signed) JOHN GREY,
Step-father of J. P. Jones.

Mrs. E. W. Mitchell of East Second street returned Thursday from a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Miles, of Lexington.

MANY ATTEND POULTRY MEETING YESTERDAY

The poultry meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon was attended by a large number, many of whom were women.

Mr. Chapin made a most interesting and instructive address on the subject of poultry raising and advised the Rhode Island Red stock for Mason county.

The cost of eggs with expressage will be about $1.10 a setting at cost and all those contemplating raising chickens should take advantage of this opportunity and decide as soon as possible as to how many eggs they would like to have and notify Mr. Carl Dadds at the Chamber of Commerce or Judge H. P. Purnell at County Judge's office, so the eggs can be ordered in lots as to get them at the lowest possible cost.

NO CLUE AS TO ORIGIN OF CYTHIANA FIRE

Mr. Edward Hite, Deputy State Fire Marshal, made an investigation Wednesday of the fire which caused the destruction of the Cythiana high school building. No one was seen to enter or leave the building on the night of the fire, the origin of which remains a mystery. Plans are already under way for the replacing of the school building with a modern fire-proof structure. School will be resumed there Monday morning in churches and public buildings.

Any King, public stenographer, office of County Judge, Court street. Work done promptly.

GROCERY STORES TO CLOSE

At 6 O'clock During the Week and at 10 O'clock on Saturday Nights, Is Decision of Grocers Association—Other Business Transacted at Meeting Held Thursday Night.

The Maysville Retail Grocers Association hold a very interesting meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening. Mr. W. W. Thorpe, one of Maysville's progressive grocers, made application and was elected to membership in the organization.

Mr. I. N. Wood one of the members was reported sick and the President appointed a sick committee to visit him.

A motion was adopted closing the store of all the members of the organization at 6 o'clock each evening except Saturday, and at 10 o'clock on Saturday evening. The president was also authorized to appoint a committee to wait on the non-members in an endeavor to do likewise. This measure the grocers felt was in line with the wishes of the government and they felt they would render the government a patriotic service in doing so as a fuel conservation measure.

A feeling of general satisfaction was expressed in the most satisfactory manner in which County Food Administrator Cochran was treating the grocers of this vicinity. They were very much pleased in the way the special food committee handled the proposition of delivery in behalf of the buying public.

Many cities are at present using the "Cash and Carry" system. The State Journal carried an article yesterday stating that the "Cash and Carry" system is to be introduced in all the grocery stores of Frankfort beginning next Monday morning. This would be a great saving to the grocerymen of Maysville but they are willing that their customers have the privilege of delivery service granted them as long as the government will permit. The carrying of small parcels by the customers will postpone the inauguration of the "Cash and Carry" system. Several of the grocers expressed their appreciation of the attitude some of the customers are taking. An instance was referred to where a customer told one of the grocers he wanted to pay cash and carry a small order home with him in that he appreciated the effort the grocers were making to assist the government in retarding the small margin of profit that they are.

We appreciate that food stuffs are high, but the grocer is not to blame especially those that are endeavoring to do their part. There are unloyal grocers the same as there are unloyal citizens but a mighty big percent of the Grocers of Maysville are trying to do the fair thing by the citizens.

COURT DAY POSTPONED TO TUESDAY IN FLEMING

Court day in Flemingsburg will be on Tuesday as long as the order of Fuel Administrator Garfield remains in force. This action has been decided on by the business men of that city who are forced to close their doors on what ordinarily would be the biggest day of the month. Similar action may be taken by the merchants of this city.

NOTICE

All property owners and tenants are notified to clean their sidewalks of snow immediately. A city ordinance provides a penalty for failing to do so. HARRY A. ORT, Chief of Police.

STORES CLOSE MONDAY

Do not forget that all Maysville stores close at noon on next Monday, so do your shopping early or you may be disappointed.

NOON CLOSING ORDER

On Mondays to Apply to Grocery Stores Here, Says Food Administrator Cochran.

Maysville, Ky., January 25, 1918. To Wholesale and Retail Stores Dealing in Food in Mason County, Kentucky:

You will make your arrangements to close at noon on Monday, from January 28th to March 25th, inclusive. This requirement is in accordance with the order of the Fuel Administrator for the Conservation of Fuel. While authority is given to the Food Administrator to permit a particular store to remain open in the afternoon on Mondays in a case of necessity, the situation in Kentucky is such that practically every food store can so arrange its business to take care of the public's demands by noon of that day, and no permission will be given to any one to remain open except in case of exceptional necessity. Should such a case arise, application should be made to the Food Administrator of the county for action.

The above is an exact copy of the order issued by Fred M. Sackett, Federal Food Administrator for Kentucky, to all wholesale and retail stores dealing in food in the state of Kentucky, and it is incumbent upon all such dealers in this county to comply strictly with this order.

During the mornings, the sale of any article except food stuffs will be in violation of the law.

W. D. COCHRAN,
Food Administrator of Mason County.

CLEANING AWAY ICE AND SNOW

Street Commissioner Ben Smith has had a large force of men busy for the past several days cleaning the snow and ice from the streets and gutters. The ice in the gutters is a foot thick in places and very hard to remove. Many Maysvillians have taken advantage of the warm weather of the past few days to clear the pavements of ice while it is soft.

Snow has been on the ground in this section continuously since the 24th day of November. The heavy snow now covering the ground fell on December 8, but at that time there was still left a light covering of snow that fell on November 24.

Limestone Lodge No. 36 Knights of Pythias is taking on new life during the past few months. The membership of the order is on the increase and plans are being made for some new activities during the coming months. Two candidates were initiated into the third rank at the regular weekly meeting held last night.

LITTLE CHANCE OF RIVER BREAKING UP SOON

Notwithstanding the fact that there has been much thawing of snow and ice during the past few days there is no indication that the ice blockade in the river will break up any way soon, unless there should come a heavy rain. Even then the ice would be covered by water for several days before it would begin to move. It is hoped that the weather will remain warm with no rain for the next week so as to give the ice and snow a chance to go off gradually.

HOOVER AND HER HOUSE

"Oh yes, a woman came to my house one day and tried to tell me how to save and what to eat and what not to eat, and I just told her what I thought of her for intruding into people's homes that way. I told her Mr. Hoover doesn't run my house!"

To patriotic and dutiful people this story may sound incredible. It is, nevertheless, strictly true. The young woman who made the statement above did so with manifest pride in her ability to quell a meddler. And there are only too many like her still left in the land.

When she says in that smug tone that "Mr. Hoover doesn't run her house" she means that she is helping to prolong the war, helping to make things uncomfortable for all the rest of the housewives. It is she and her like who are largely responsible for sugar shortages and wheat inconveniences. She is own sister to the woman who says blithely in the street-car, "Yes, I have fifty pounds of sugar put by, of course, I never let myself get below that. But I buy a pound every time I get a chance, anyhow." These are working allies of the Kaiser.

As for Mr. Hoover—his name has ceased to be a personal affair. It has become a national symbol of co-operation in the matter of food conservation. To Hooverize means to clean up the fragments, to save, to use what might have been thrown away. When a woman smilingly says, "We're living according to Hoover at our house," she means that she is cheerfully planning her meals for the benefit of her country and its allies.

The woman who makes a slurring remark about Mr. Hoover or his aides is not harming that gentleman personally in any way. But she is harming herself and her country, and she should be put right promptly by any person who hears her. This kind of narrow stupidity cannot be tolerated by a nation at war.

OVERRULING THE SUPREME COURT

Most citizens assumed, when the United States supreme court declared the selective service law constitutional, that that settled the matter. But not so. The Milwaukee Leader, edited by Victor Berger, the Socialist ex-congressman, proceeded to overrule the supreme court in an editorial decision of which this is a typical extract:

"That the law is unconstitutional we have not the slightest doubt. The argument of Hamis Taylor, which we published last summer, is incontrovertible. In fact, the court does not make any attempt to controvert it. The opinion just lists the various objections that were made to the law and states that they have no merit in them. It does not read like a calm and reason legal opinion at all. By reading it, a bystander would naturally reach the conclusion that the court had determined to hold the law valid regardless of the constitution, and feeling unable to meet the arguments, avoided them by saying they had no merit."

Possibly Editor Berger has been influenced rudely by his immediate environment. It may be that Milwaukee bystanders are able to reach that conclusion. If so, Milwaukee is probably the only community in America—if Milwaukee is still in America—enjoying such a distinction. Something like 100,000,000 other bystanders would have been much astonished and disgusted if the court had decided any other way.

However, the supreme court judges have been overruled and rebuked, and are no doubt thoroughly chastened thereby. It must be as humiliating for them to find a mere Socialist editor knowing more constitutional law than they do as it is for the other hundred-million of us to be told that we don't know anything about democracy.

BOND THRIFT

We are being taught thrift today from a thousand angles, and every one of them is worth while. Here is a particular angle mentioned by Frank Vanderlip, the banker, which may not have occurred to us.

Many of us have imagined we were doing a commendable thing when we borrowed money to buy war bonds. We were, to a certain extent. We showed a patriotic spirit. But we may have fallen short of the great essential. For if we did not pay back that borrowed money, says Mr. Vanderlip, we were not thrifty, and so did not really help the government.

No one, he says, should borrow money to buy war bonds or war savings stamps unless he afterwards liquidates the indebtedness, because to do otherwise contributes to financial inflation and makes the government's financial problem more difficult.

This is a matter that ought to be better understood. It isn't the mere purchase of Liberty Bonds that helps Uncle Sam wage war. It's saving the money out of current income and letting Uncle Sam use it.

And there's another matter just as important as paying for the bonds out of savings. It's keeping the bonds when you've bought them. It doesn't do Uncle Sam any good if you buy Liberty Bonds and then sell them right away.

TOO MUCH SUGAR

After all American talk about the sacrifices America is making for the Allies, the figures produced by Mr. Hoover respecting American consumption of sugar are enough to make Americans feel uncomfortable and look hypocritical. The plain facts are that American consumption of sugar during a period of distressing shortage has at best slightly diminished. Each American consumes over twice as much as each Englishman and almost four times as much as each Frenchman. Surely it is time to deal more drastically with such anomalies—with such overwhelming indications of a refusal or inability on the part of the American to abandon under the shock of war the wasteful indulgence of his ordinary desires. Americans are the most reckless consumers of candies and sweet drinks in the world, and it is this class of consumption which is least necessary and has the smallest food value. Something can be done to diminish the drain made by candy stores and soda water fountains on the sugar supply by an appeal to voluntary effort, but the appeal should be backed up by a power of coercion with which the Food Administration is not now possessed, but which should be granted to it some time in the near future.—The New Republic.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Maysville Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are weak. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Weak kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, suggest weak kidneys and warn you of the danger of dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. In that case Don's Kidney Pills have been endorsed by thousands. Here is a statement of a nearby resident:

Mr. M. Newton, Gun, St. Aberdeen, Ohio, says: "I have used Don's Kidney Pills off and on for several years and have been greatly benefited. Whenever my back has been weak or when my kidneys have been too frequent in action, I have used a box or so of Don's Kidney Pills, which I get at Wood & Son's Drug Store. They have always relieved me in a short time."

The above is not an isolated case. Mr. Newton is only one of many in this vicinity who have gratefully endorsed Don's. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Don's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Newton had. 60c all stores. STARVING TO SAVE FUEL

A brilliant solution of the coal problem is now proposed. It is simply to suspend business and stop using coal one day a week. The Food Administrator is a wonderfully level-headed man, but if he should ever lose his balance, he might try the same idea. Then we could have an ordinance forbidding people to use food in order to avert a famine.

There is a legal maxim to the effect that ignorance of the law excuses no man. The proposer of this idea of a "legal holiday" every Monday by Presidential proclamation, if judged by this maxim, is not to be excused. On the same principle, ignorance of transportation business should excuse no fuel administrator, when he fails to deliver coal so long as it is not an impossible task.

Aside from the fantasy of the disruption of business in making a "legal holiday" by an illegal act, what of the effect on the mass of our people? Salaried men and wage earners outside of munition factories and some overpaid employment, are finding it increasingly difficult to pay income and family expenses balance. Out one day a week from their work and the loss to them is equivalent to a 16 2-3 per cent reduction in salary. Conversely, the increase in popular discontent might easily be 50 per cent. As a war measure, that hardly sounds like a success.

Our people want coal, not talk; work and wages, not holidays and idleness; warmth and food, not pneumonia and hunger. The supply of their needs depends upon the distribution of coal to the home. For this purpose fuel administrators were appointed. When, with the anthracite mines but 100 miles from New York, and in operation, with bituminous coal not out of reach, they begin talking of ways to avoid distribution, they are confessing their own inefficiency.

len is not the American way. The public demands that the question be met, not evaded. It will demand that coal be delivered to every home, business place, and necessary manufacturing plant in sufficient quantity to meet every need. It will back up its government to the limit of human endurance while the war is on, but it will not submit to official supineness in the face of difficulties, or be told to freeze and starve as an easy expedient to relieve a not impossible situation.

GERMANY'S PEACE TERMS REJECTED BY SLAV LEADERS

Petrograd, January 24.—The Russian delegates to the Brest-Litovsk peace conference have decided unanimously to reject the terms offered by the Germans.

The decision of the delegates was announced tonight by M. Kamenoff, a member of the Russian delegation. The Germans declared the terms laid down by them were their last offer, and that if the Russians did not accept them hostilities would be resumed and the Germans would capture Riga in a week.

M. Kamenoff, who returned from Brest-Litovsk with Foreign Minister Trotsky, said the remainder of the Russian delegation had stayed there in order to avoid the appearance of an immediate rupture.

"We were told," he added, "that the German terms were the last they would offer.

"We were unanimous that they should be rejected. Final decision, however, must rest with the Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates."

The congress is expected to take up tomorrow the question of peace or war.

SOLDIERS APPLAUD WHEN TAFT TELLS 'EM TO HUST GERMAN HEADS

Ayer, Mass., January 24.—Three thousand national army soldiers at Camp Devens cheered former President Taft wildly when, in the first of a series of talks he is to give at encampments all over the country, he exclaimed: "The Germans are so imbued with the idea that they are fighting for divine right that you must treat their heads—with a club."

The Y. M. C. A. auditorium, in which Mr. Taft spoke, was filled with uniformed men, and they interrupted him frequently with applause.

CHAPTER V.

Although the great French traveller and explorer, La Salle, in his attempt to reach China by coming down the Ohio river from Canada in 1686, may have passed before the mouth of Cabin Creek and could have made a landing there, if he so desired, we have no written statement of his that he did so. And of the many others who, doubtless, passed down in canoes and pirogues during those very early days of the settlement of America, we have no record of any positive visit of white men to our valley of Cabin Creek until 1751.

That year Christopher First was sent out by Laurence Washington, grandfather of George Washington, and a party of Englishmen, known as the Ohio Company of England. He was to explore and survey land along the Ohio river suitable for colonization.

Gist's diary tells us that he crossed the Ohio river into Kentucky at the Shawanese town which lay opposite the mouth of the Scioto river. He said the town really occupied both sides of the river and contained altogether about 140 houses and 300 men. One building he described was a kind of state house in which they held their councils. It was about 90 feet long.

This town called "Indian Old Town" was the first, last and only Indian town in Kentucky, which was merely the bunting ground for many tribes.

French traders had helped the Indians to build it. The part of the town on the north bank of the Ohio was washed away in 1765 by a great flood in the Scioto river. The Kentucky town was abandoned during the French and Indian war (1754-1763) from fear of the Virginians.

The Treaty of Paris in 1763 closing the war, put an end to practically all the troubles with the Indians in this part of the country. The Indians had sympathized with the French rather than with the English while the lands adjacent to the Ohio were under dispute, and their atrocities upon English settlers were terrible, but, after the success of the British, the savages were compelled to do all their haterings with them and better conditions immediately prevailed.

Emigrants from England and Ireland flocked in and the country was rapidly taken up.

During the summer after the winter spent on Cabin Creek by Simon Kenton and his beaver trapping party (1773) a party of surveyors, sent by Patrick Henry, then Governor of Virginia, encamped in Kentucky, just opposite the Three Islands (now called Manchester Islands). Several other surveying parties came the same year, down the river as far as Cabin Creek before landing. Among them were Gen. William Thompson of Pennsylvania, who went with his party two miles up Cabin Creek thence along the Upper War Road to Mill Creek, where he made a survey.

John Finely also passed this way the same summer, going out to Upper Blue Lick.

In 1775 James Gilmore and his company passed along the same road and Col. Calamero or Calloway landed at Cabin Creek and took his party out to Lulbegrund Creek in Clark county, where they raised corn the same year.

Simon Kenton whose companion, George Yeager, had been shot by Indians the year before, came in the spring of 1775 again to Cabin Creek with Thomas Williams. Yeager had spent several years of his life, a captive among the Indians he had described to Kenton in glowing terms "a beautiful canoe land" seen while traveling about with them. He said the Indians had called it Kaia-tuck-ee and he declared that there he saw rich level fields covered with a wonderful growth of cane, and with grass almost waist high. He said all kinds of game abounded and the most entrancing scenery gladdened the eye. His vivid description of this Utopia fired Kenton's imagination and he walked and searched many a mile along the river trying to find it. He and Williams reached Cabin Creek late in one afternoon early in May, they hurried on to the creek about two miles to a favorite camping place of both Indian and white travelers in early days.

This was at a large spring which gushed out below the roots of a tremendous buck eye tree, by the side of the road. This tree was fully 18 inches in diameter and bore upon its trunk one of those peculiar marks or "blazes" by which the Indians indicated their war roads.

Kenton was much interested in these marks and in later years he described their use and appearance in depositions before the courts.

This time he carved his own name above the Indian "blaze" and then he and Williams proceeded to prepare for the night. They slept in the hollow trunk of one of the seven sycamore trees which marked the camp. The next morning leaving Williams at the camp Kenton took up his search, deciding however to travel a little farther back from the river than ever. Judge of his satisfaction when after a few hours he passed coming out toward Mill Creek, he beheld stretched out before him the "canoe land." Itcher sold than he had ever seen, tall cane far above his head and velvet soil more beautiful even than he had dreamed of. Overjoyed he hastily returned after Williams.

Sinking their canoe in the creek and carefully saving the small package of corn, purchased on their way down from a French trader, they broke camp and went over into the new land. This was in May and on reaching a spot near what is now the little town of Washington, they made a camp and cleared a small piece of land which they planted with the corn. Here in due time they welcomed Col. Patterson and his party and offered them roasting ears, the first ever grown by a white man north of the Licking river.

The big buckeye tree bearing Kenton's name and the Indian blaze has decayed and gone but G. D. Jenkins of Springdale, says it was still standing when he was a boy and that the strange marks upon its bark were still visible, though at that time it was impossible to decipher their meaning.

The spring still gushes forth and the seven sycamores of the camp one still remains green and healthy. Of Mr. Jenkins relates an interesting story.

THE HOME

You Are Sure to Go Home Happy, If You Do.

His grandfather Hezekiah Jenkins, who owned the land about the spring had leased the tract of timber to a certain surveyor, who desired to set his steam saw mill where he could use the waters of the spring to supply his engine.

It seems there was no definite understanding as to reserving the fine old trees of the camp and Capt. Jenkins was greatly aroused when, one day he discovered several of the old sentinels laid upon the ground to be sawed into lumber. Remonstrance proving unavailing he hastened to the nearest store and purchased several pounds of large iron nails. Returning he drove them, everyone, into the trunk of the tree on every side. Of course no woodman would now dare risk his ax in chopping into it and the grand old tree was saved.

The nailheads are now obliterated by the new growth of bark but the tree bears in its heart the nails placed there by its loving master.

Late that summer (1775) Col. Robert Patterson, one of the founders of three cities: Lexington, Ky., Cincinnati, and Dayton, Ohio, came with a party into Kentucky at the mouth of Salt Lick Creek, went up that stream to its source, thence down and across Cabin Creek, following the same war road out to Mayslick, there taking the Buffalo trail to Lower Blue Licks and on to Leestown. Col. Patterson, then but 22 years old, had with him nine horses and fourteen cattle, the first domestic animals permanently introduced into northern Kentucky. The next year Col. George Rogers Clarke persuaded the Council of Virginia to order 500 pounds of gunpowder for the relief of the settlers in Kentucky who were still menaced by marauding Indians.

Having secured the powder at Pittsburgh he arrived December, 1776, at the Three Islands (now Manchester, O.). He also had a considerable quantity of lead for bullets.

The party concealed their valuable supplies on the lower island and proceeded to McClelland's Station (Georgetown) for assistance in conveying it through. Not finding there sufficient help to justify the attempt, Clark, piloted by Simon Kenton went on to Harrodsburg for help. While they were gone a man named Jones persuaded ten men to accompany him on an attempt to get the supplies. They were attacked on the way by the Indian Chief "Pluggey." Jones and another were killed the others managed to escape.

Clarke and his party including Col. James Harrod were more successful. They came by way of Cabin Creek. Upon the advice of Kenton they did not return this way but dropped down the river a few miles below Limestone (Maysville) before landing and successfully reaching home.

MANY MEN GETTING WORK

The plan of Chief of Police Harry A. Ort to make all the idle men about the city go to work is showing splendid results. Some of the men have been employed to clean off the streets and gutters and others have been given employment at the tobacco warehouses, redryers and other plants. There is no reason for anyone to be out of work in Maysville at the present time and if a fellow simply refuses to work he will be brought into Police Court, given a heavy fine and be forced to work for the city free of charge. This is no time for anyone to be idle and Chief Ort is to be commended on the action he has taken, and to back him up he has the full cooperation of Mayor Russell and the City Council, as well as the heart support of the public in general.

Franklin is well known here, having preached at the local church on several occasions. He is a splendid preacher and should have large audiences out to hear him tomorrow.

Russell announces that this is the last shipment of Jefferson flour that will be obtainable by his firm, as the Food Administration has ruled that all flour must be made so as to combine the first, second and third grades into one.

TAYLOR BONE DRY BILL

Passes Kentucky House—Shipment of Liquor into Dry Territory for Beverage Purposes is Prohibited and Fine is Provided for Persons Who Receive or Solicit Orders For Its Sale.

Frankfort, Ky., January 25—If the Kentucky house of representatives concurs in the action of the senate all the prohibition territory of the state will soon become as dry as the proverbial bone. The senate today passed the Taylor "bone-dry" bill that prohibits the shipment of liquor into dry territory for beverage purposes and lays a penalty on receiving liquor in dry territory and on soliciting orders for the sale of liquor in person or through hand bills and posters. The vote was 26 to 4.

Those opposing passage of the bill were Senators Burton of Grant county, Huffaker and Perry of Louisville, and Rayburn of Lewis county.

Under the present law the amount that may be shipped to an individual in dry territory is limited to one gallon of whiskey and five gallons of beer in one month and must be only for personal use.

The Taylor bill that the senate passed today is so drastic in its provisions that some of the senators expressed their doubt as to its constitutionality. Some of them said that it could not be construed to prevent a man from personally bringing in liquors for his own use. The bill as originally drawn did not even permit liquors to be brought into dry territory for sacramental, medicinal or scientific purposes, but when it was proved that this would be in conflict with existing state and federal laws, the bill was amended so as to permit importation for these specific uses.

The present members of the state prison commission and the tax commission were renominated today.

FORTY ARMED MEXICANS MAKE RAID ON EL PASO; ONE AMERICAN SOLDIER KILLED

El Paso, Texas, January 25—Forty armed Mexicans crossed the Rio Grande in the southern part of El Paso tonight. Soldiers and policemen armed with rifles were rushed to the scene. Fifteen minutes later, firing was still in progress. Private Linn, on outpost duty, has been brought in with a bullet wound in his body.

After firing several hundred shots the Mexicans retreated across the river. A company of United States Infantry on guard at the Santa Fe International bridge fired at the retreating Mexicans, but it was not known if any was hit. Patrols have been sent north and south along the river in anticipation of an attempt by Mexicans to rush the guard on the theory that the men on duty would be attracted by the firing in El Paso.

Judge Samuel J. Pugh has been appointed Food Administrator for Lewis county and will call a meeting of the merchants of the county next week to fix prices at which foodstuffs can be sold.

Relieved After Taking Two Bottles Of Cardui, Says Tennessee Lady.

Whitwell, Tenn.—Mrs. G. P. Cartwright, of this place, writes: "About four years ago the dizzy spells got so bad that when I would start to walk I would just pretty near fall. I wasn't past doing my work, but was very much run-down."

I told my husband I thought Cardui would help me, as a lady who lived next door to me had taken a great deal, and told me to try it. This was when we were living in Kentucky.

My husband got me a bottle and I took it according to directions. It helped me so much that he went back and got me another bottle. I got a whole lot better and just quit taking it. I got over the dizzy spells. I took no other medicine at that time nor since for this trouble. No, I've never regretted taking Cardui.

I felt just fine when I finished the second bottle."

Purely vegetable, mild and gentle in its action, Cardui, the woman's tonic, may be the very medicine you need. If you suffer from symptoms of female troubles, give Cardui a trial. All druggists. NC-129

OYSTERS SCARCE

Maysville restaurants are not serving luscious oysters in unlimited quantities, as has been the case heretofore. The oysters in Chesapeake Bay, the chief source of supply for nearly all the market west of Baltimore, has been frozen up for several weeks. Because of this only a limited supply has been received here.
